1. Process Explanation

Living on campus, I could see so many ways people interrupted nature's space and made stuff for their own will. Roads/paths/buildings all are very close to each other, so I could easily see trees/grass/flowers being restricted from taking the whole space as theirs. Nature could not be nature itself as humans are taking their place. A majority of the pictures include green as it is the symbol of nature.

2. Why this Collection

The thing I thought as gathering the pictures what they have in common is that the plants are all restricted by humans. However, as I got feedback and did more consideration of the collection, I could see many faces of nature having its autonomy even with human. By IMG_5664 which is a picture of a very small plant growing from the crack of bricks, I learned how nature does have the power to overcome artificial stuff too. Also, by IMG_5610 and IMG_5743 with a manhole with tiny plants near it, I can see how nature has an infinite possibility.

3. Possible outcomes

The outcome I expect is a picture of how nature overcomes humans and breaks it through. Plants have the power to crack up asphalt as in IMG_5608 and show their existence even in such a hard environment. It would be interesting to find more of these examples, and I expect that I will gain more hope about the future.
